SOWINGS

By Brenda Ealey, SELS

"The illiterate of the 21st century will not be those who cannot read and write, but those who cannot learn, unlearn and relearn." -- Alvin Toffler

Nebraska Regional Library Systems were pleased to collaborate with UNL Libraries for the Nebraska Library Leadership Institute Reunion on July 13th at UNL Love Library. Joan Giesecke, Dean of UNL Libraries, and Nancy Busch, Associate Dean of UNL Libraries, were our presenters and talked about leadership agility, library scenarios for the future, and creating learning organizations. There was great energy having participants and mentors from past Nebraska Library Leadership Institutes all in one room and found me wishing I could bottle it and uncap it at advantageous moments.

One of the analogies that Joan shared seemed to put things in good perspective regarding librarians in passive vs. active roles. Consider an ATM – it requires a user directed response and plays a passive role. Contrast that with a kitchen where creativity is key as a part of a very social interactive environment. There's also the idea that an ATM is customer controlled, as opposed to a kitchen being customer driven. It provides a great picture to guide our efforts as we look to solve today's problems: problems that require speed, analysis and elimination of uncertainty, as well as dilemmas that require patience, sense-making and an engagement with uncertainty. It could be my age and/or background but somehow tackling the current challenges in the library world with a nod to the skills, tools and interactions I appreciate in the kitchen provides perspective in a manner that seems achievable.

All of that ties in nicely with what are identified as characteristics of a Learning Organization:

- Skilled at creating, acquiring and transferring knowledge that improves the organization
- Learning is related to the organization
- Behavior is modified based on learning
- Changes occur in how the work is done based on learning

Joan & Nancy also shared the Five Components to a Learning Organization:

- Personal Mastery individual learning. Focus learning on ways that improve work processes, i.e. 15 minutes a day to read something new, learn something new.
- Mental Models These are our assumptions that need to be challenged.
- Shared Vision Agreement on where the group is going and a vision that inspires action.
- Team Learning Helps prevent a bunch of individuals just doing their own thing, making it important to review teams and goals so they don't become concrete.
- Systems Thinking Recognize you're a part of the bigger whole: "We're all a part of something and if I tweak this it will have an effect somewhere else."

A commitment to change and rewarding and reinforcing learning, which involves active listening, are organizational strategies that contribute to a learning organization.

The characteristics of a Passive-Aggressive Organization were also outlined and helpful in identifying unhealthy organizations that have gotten off-track and onto a destructive course. Characteristics include a lack of accountability (there are no consequences for not following organizational directives); employees second-guessing each other; a lack of incentives to meet organizational goals; those doing a good job are taken for granted or a situation where everybody gets a trophy, regardless of the level of accomplishment.

SELS has posted Joan's and Nancy's slides from the reunion on the website (www.selsne.org). There you'll find more details and a glimpse at the other areas of the day's discussion which included partnership and advocacy exercises for all types of libraries using ALA's – Every Voice Makes a Difference!

The July CASTL meeting was hosted by Aimee Morlan at the Weeping Water Public Library. It was wonderful to get the chance to see their new library which they moved into in December. The library is beautiful with great spaces for youth and adults, and includes a computer lab. The library is attached to the community center which provides a space for meetings and events. Grand Opening of the library took place during Limestone Days with an open house and celebration on June 30th.

On the CASTL agenda this month was a conversation on Service Animals in the library and listed below are snippets from the discussion:

Only dogs are recognized as service animals under

Each meeting has a dedicated topic of focus, as well as a round robin for discussion and sharing of current issues, topics and library happenings. Attendees earn continuing education hours and you are welcome to join us for all or even part of the day.

Titles II and III of the ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act), as of March 15, 2011 – except for miniature horses that meet requirements.

- A service animal is individually trained to do work or perform tasks for a person with a disability, including a physical, sensory, psychiatric, intellectual or other mental disability. Service animals are working animals, not pets and the task they've been trained to provide must directly relate to the person's disability. If you have a "no pets" policy you must make an exception for service animals.
- Miniature horse requirements include: range in weight from 70-100 pounds; and height from 24-34 inches. Horses can live 30 years and are stronger than many dogs.
- Under the ADA, State and local governments, businesses, and nonprofit organizations that serve the public generally must allow service animals to accompany people with disabilities in all areas of the facility where the public is normally allowed to go.
- When it is NOT OBVIOUS what service an animal provides, only limited inquiries are allowed. Staff may ask two questions: 1) is the dog a service animal required because of a disability, and 2) what work or task has the dog been trained to perform. Staff cannot ask about the persona's disability, require medical documentation, require a special identification card or training documentation for the dog, or ask that the dog demonstrate its ability to perform the work or task.
- There are 3 reasons a person with a disability can be asked to remove his/her service animal from the premises: 1) The animal is out of control and the handler does not take effective action. 2) The animal is not housebroken. 3) The handler refuses to answer inquiry.

If you are in need of additional information regarding service animals and the ADA you can check online at: www.ada.gov or with the Great Plains ADA Center (1-800-949-4232) or www.adaproject.org/. It would be a good time for librarians and boards to review policies and procedures to make certain they meet ADA service animal requirements.

You'll find answers to the following important questions: How will you sustain and maintain the equipment you have? What sorts of training should be planned for both your patrons and your staff? How can you network with other libraries to share knowledge?

Technology Planning Summer Camp 2 is open to all public libraries in Nebraska. Up to 3 people from each library can attend – library administration, staff, IT support, and board members are invited. Participants who attend all sessions will receive 9.5 CE Credits.

Funding for this event is being provided by a grant from the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation in conjunction with the BTOP grant, Library Broadband Builds Nebraska Communities (LBBNC). The Gates Foundation funds will be covering all travel costs (hotel and mileage) for libraries in the LBBNC grant.

Kilgore Kicks Summer Boredom!

By Judy Andrews, Youth Services Librarian

This summer in York was a busy one at the Kilgore Memorial Library. Over 300 children were registered for Reading Club, 67 were registered for the very first Young Adult Reading Club at the Library. Twelve programs at the library brought in an average of 100 children every week for six weeks. Tuesdays were special guest days and we welcomed live owls from the Raptor Recovery Center; a salamander, toad and snake visited from Project Wild of Nebraska; and we all enjoyed an explosive science program from the Edgerton Explorit Center! Children got to do some acting with Dr. Baker from York College, and enjoyed watching Tangled with free popcorn and lemonade. Jeff Quinn brought his wonderful magic show to entertain a very large crowd for our Finale on Tuesday July 17th.

On Thursdays we heard stories and made crafts. The children made everything from small wishing wells to dream jars. Our special science project was dissecting owl pellets during our "Soar with Books" week featuring everything about these wonderful birds.

To complete a great summer of reading fun, everyone enjoyed a Beach Party at the Family Aquatic Center with games, prizes and special party freebees!

Hair-raising experiments with the Edgerton Explorit Center!

The library's second annual "Fear Factor" had 12 kids who successfully conquered their fears of jello, finding marbles in an ice cold pool, and smashing eggs in their bare hands. It was fun and exciting to watch particularly the marble catching. One poor partner ended up with a lapful of cold marbles!

The program ended with lego building (one partner directed their blindfolded teammate) to duplicate a completed figure.

The winners, Lexi and Kayla Blinston, were awarded $5 gift cards to Burger King for their victory.

Giesecke Steps Down as UNL Libraries Dean

By Kelly Bartling, Reprinted with cuts from UNL Announce, http://newsroom.unl.edu/announce/todayatunl/1420/8145

After 16 years leading UNL Libraries, Joan Giesecke announced July 17 she is stepping down as dean to accept a new administrative assignment.

"I have decided to step out of my role as your dean," Giesecke said in her announcement message to library colleagues. "I am intensely proud of the things we have accomplished together and I'm excited about the next phase of advancement for the UNL Libraries, but as you are aware, I continue to face health challenges that are increasing my fatigue levels. I have appreciated your support over the last few years as I balanced my responsibilities here in the libraries, special assignments on campus, and my national leadership roles in ARL (the Association of Research Libraries) with a set of medical treatments."

Reflecting on 25 years in UNL Libraries, Giesecke said there are three things of which she is most proud: overseeing renovations to improve the libraries in size and service, enhancing the diversity of libraries faculty, and the strong relationships developed to help the colleges advance their teaching and research.

Senior Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Ellen Weissinger said "Joan has very strategically created a library that is at once technically sophisticated and user-centered. She consistently peeked over the horizon to make sure that our faculty and students had the materials, technologies and services that we were about to need. As she accomplished this, she has been exceptionally focused on innovative service to the scholarly community on campus. The library enjoys the strong support of the campus and that means that Joan has positioned the libraries so well for the future."

Weissinger and Chancellor Harvey Perlman have asked Giesecke to coordinate the university's preparation for the Higher Learning Commission accreditation (due in 2016).

"While I will miss my library colleagues, I will have the opportunity to explore new areas and contribute to the campus mission in a new position," Giesecke said. "As some of you know, accreditation is a major research interest of mine and I am enthusiastic about the opportunity to explore this area in depth."

"This is another door opening."
Weissinger said libraries associate dean Nancy
Busch will be stepping in as interim dean on Aug.
12.

Plattsmouth Library Receives Grant for Digitization

From Karen Mier, Plattsmouth Public Library

The Plattsmouth Public Library applied for a grant from the Nebraska State Records Board in the amount of $25,000 for the digitization of its Plattsmouth newspapers on microfilm. On July 25, the library learned that it would receive $23,742 from the grant!

The library sought quotes from several digitization vendors, requesting the use of the National Digital Newspaper Program (NDNP) standards set by the Library of Congress for its Chronicling America collection of digitized newspapers. The library also conferred with Katherine Walter, Director of the Nebraska Digital Newspaper Project, a collection of historically significant Nebraska newspapers that were digitized from microfilm in partnership with Library of Congress and the National Endowment for the Humanities. Working with these agencies allows the Plattsmouth newspapers through 1922 to be included in the Nebraska Newspaper project and be considered for inclusion in Chronicling America.

The project is expected to take several years since the cost exceeds $90,000 to purchase negative masters and digitize 138 reels of microfilm using the NDNP standards. The Plattsmouth Public Library Foundation has pledged $2,000 towards the project, and the library has $1,200 in donations that have been designated for this project. Additional grants have been written and Foundation fundraising has begun.

The library is looking forward to being able to search the newspapers by keyword and providing this same service to the public on the Internet.

Summer Reading Comes to a Close in Auburn

From Heather Koeneke, Auburn Memorial Library

Auburn Memorial just finished their Summer Reading program. This summer the kids enjoyed a puppeteer, a magician, a speaker from the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission, and science experiments. This year there were 89 readers that read 3,446 books in just six weeks. Heather said, "It was a great success!"

Seward's Skyline is Brilliant

From Charlotte Baldinger, Seward Memorial Library

The Seward skyline stretching across the Children's Reading Room in Seward Memorial Library is blanketed with stars of many sizes and colors. Children carefully placed their first star in the heavens and soon they were joined by a galaxy of stars as the pages turned. Each star represents points earned while reading. The largest stars suspended within the room are those belonging to the highest achievers who accumulated 500 points this summer. The summer goal for the Children's Reading Club was 30,000 points (one point is earned for each picture book read or 25 pages in a chapter book). When the final tally was made the grand summer total was 30,036 points. Hours of reading created a brilliant sky over Seward. The children in Seward really did "Dream Big - READ!"

On September 1, 2012 I will be stepping down as director of the library and Jessica Votipka will assume my position. I will still work in the library as assistant for a few more years.

I have worked at the library for over 20 years and have been director for 15 or 16 years. I will miss the kids, people and all the other librarians I have come to know through the library. There were some older people in the community that I came to know through working in the library that I really enjoyed and am so glad that I got to know them. Some of them are gone now and I still think of them often. I think I learn something new everyday from people. I will not miss the paperwork and statistical reports. I am looking forward to spending more time with my husband, grandson and daughter and just putzing around my house. One thing that I remember is I was reading a story to kids at a Summer Reading Program. It must have been a good story because they were really getting into it. I didn't notice until I was done with the story that the kids had kept inching forward during the story until they were about sitting on my feet. I have also had kids tell me several years after a Summer Reading Program "Remember when we did this or that at Summer Reading?". That would really please me to think that they remembered. I hope I have given the kids and my patrons good service and positive experiences at the library during my time. I also hope that I have made some improvements to the library.

Seward Summer Reading Program Finale Features the String Beans

From Charlotte Baldinger, Seward Memorial Library

A popular singing group, The String Beans, headlined Seward's Summer Reading Club finale at the Bandshell on Thursday, July 26. Many children in the audience were wearing their "Dream Big –READ!" shirts which were earned by reading during the summer. All of the children who participated in the summer program were recognized and those who reached the goal of 500 points or more were applauded. These 23 ambitious readers received a special Champion Reader yard sign, medallion, and certificate as well as all of the benefits of many hours of reading enjoyment. The Friends of Seward Library served ice cream so the evening celebration was perfect, until a cloud appeared on the horizon. In addition to providing some much needed shade, the cloud surprised everyone by creating a brief downpour. Children danced in the rain to the String Beans closing song, "Taking a Bath." The soaked staff will remember the 2012 program for more than meeting the Summer Reading Club goal of earning 30,000 points.

World Book Night 2013

World Book Night 2013 is a celebration of literacy by publishers, bookstores, libraries and individuals who love books and reading. On World Book Night 2013, 25,000 "book givers" will each give away 20 copies of a specially-printed, not-for-resale WBN edition of book they have read and loved (from a list of 25-30 titles selected by librarians and booksellers) to complete strangers – people who may never have owned a book of their own. To promote this literacy event, libraries and bookstores – as organizational participants in the event – form a nationwide advocacy and distribution network.

Library organizational participants are making a commitment to (1) be a site for individual "book giver" volunteers* to pick up their shipment of books and (2) be an active advocate in their community for World Book Night 2013 and literacy. (*Individuals in your community interested in being a "book giver" volunteer will be asked to complete the application on the World Book Night website, available in Fall 2012.)

An application, which must be submitted by September 1st, can be found at: http://connect.ala.org/node/183788

Like a splinter or like a journalist? Embedded school librarianship

Special Guest Speaker: Sara Kelley-Mudie

The idea of being embedded is at the heart of much of what we believe makes school libraries effective; we don't teach skills in isolation, but rather embed them within the larger curriculum of our schools. We can take these beliefs that are at the core of school librarianship, and expand them in order to redefine--or, really, highlight--how integral librarians are to the larger mission of the school. Embedded librarianship is about moving beyond the physical walls of the library--both virtually and physically--in order make connections between the students and teachers in our schools and resources, information, and people inside and outside of the school.

In this talk, I'll outline the theory and standards that are the foundations for my practice as an embedded librarian, the tools I use to create connections and share resources, and how I've embedded myself in a variety of teaching and learning spaces in my school.

Southeast Library System is a multi-type library network with 248 members offering a wide range of service in public, school, academic, institutional and private libraries (Membership list with populations from 2000 Census are on the SELS web page: www.selsne.org.) Membership includes 12 academic institutions, including the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, four private colleges, three community college campuses, a state college and a technical school. Fifty-four public libraries are system members. The majority of these libraries (34) serve populations fewer than 1,000. The system counts 146 school media centers among its members, 54 that are Lincoln Public Schools, with most of those belonging to Class 3 schools (population areas between 1,000 and 100,000). Fourteen of the school media centers are parochial. The system has 28 special and institutional members, most of which are located in Lancaster County.
